

Leadership lessons from geese

1. Much greater flying range is added by flying together in a 'V' formation, not alone.
2. When a goose falls out of formation, it moves straight back in to take advantage of the lifting power of the bird in front.
3. When the lead bird tires, it rotates leadership.
4. Geese honk to encourage those up front to keep up their speed.
5. When a goose gets sick or wounded, two geese drop out of formation and follow it down to help and protect it.

Longer term tailor-made training solutions, to support management development, team development or leadership development, can also be created especially for you and your team.

Our programmes also include SDI (Strength Development Inventory) courses providing an insight into what makes individuals the way they are and bespoke Outdoor Development Management courses where participants learn new ways of approaching work problems in the great outdoors.

Leading Clients

SGA's impressive range of clients is testimony to the standard of its expertise. Over the past few years, it has helped businesses and organisations in a number of public and private industry sectors, develop and grow to meet their full potential.

Amongst SGA's clients are:

“Your team building session with the practice was a total success. Dr W is a changed man – he is no longer rude to staff and has started speaking to Dr C.”

Many SGA clients are so pleased with the results, that they undertake a series of different management development programmes over a number of years.

“Excellent value SDI workshop – undoubtedly the best of these techniques I have seen. All the others have turned into shelf-ware as they are too difficult to use in the real world. Can't wait to use it back at the ranch.”
